Teachers ratify 6-year agreement

Labour. 86% vote to accept contract offer, ending strike

Half a million British Columbia students will start their school year next week.

The province's strike-weary public school teachers have ratified a hard-bargained contract, despite strong feelings the deal falls short on improving classroom conditions.

Results of a provincewide vote were announced late Thursday, with 86 per cent of the 31,741 teachers who cast ballots voting in favour of the agreement.

B.C. Teachers' Federation president Jim Iker announced the result means teachers across the province will lower their picket lines and open schools as early as Monday, but stated they will not do anything to make up the lost time.

"This was a very tough round of negotiations and a difficult time for many of us on strike. But together, we successfully pushed back against concessions and we have emerged as a stronger and more engaged union," Iker told reporters and some 40,000 observers over a live-streamed news conference.

The result is lower than the landslide support garnered in another vote last week to end the dispute with binding arbitration, and ranks third among four other ratification votes over the past decade.

The six-year deal includes a 7.25 per cent salary increase, improvements in extended health benefits and the teaching-on-call rates, as well as a $400-million education fund to hire specialist teachers. It provides an additional $105 million for dispatching of retroactive grievances.

Class size and composition — the issue at the centre of a 12-year dispute between teachers and the provincial government — remain the same.

Gabriola residents succeed in petition for bridge study

Lobbying for a link. Feasibility of replacing ferry service to be determined

MATT KIELTYKA
matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

The provincial government is looking at the possibility of a bridge linking Vancouver Island and Gabriola Island.

The Ministry of Transportation announced Thursday it has launched a feasibility study into a fixed link between the two that would replace existing ferry service.

"Gabriola Island residents have petitioned the provincial government to do this study so that any future discussion about a fixed link can be based on current, factual information," Minister Todd Stone said in a statement.

"On that basis, and in consideration of our vision that coastal communities are connected in a sustainable manner, we'll assess the feasibility of a fixed link between the two islands."

The announcement comes after a group called the Gabriola Bridge Society successfully petitioned for a bridge.

Michael Zane, a Gabriola resident and one of the petition organizers, said 609 signatures were delivered to the ministry on June 3.

The group's petition claims the benefits of a bridge include emergency access for Gabriola to Nanaimo Regional Hospital and inexpensive transportation as B.C. Ferry rates go up and service is cut.

"We're becoming sort of an undeclared gated community," said Zane. "There's a silent majority of us who think that we can build this bridge without a significant cost."

Though not everyone in the community agrees, a short (several hundred metres to Vancouver Island depending on the location), two-lane bridge would be a relatively "inexpensive proposition" and serve the community for 100 years, Zane believes.

According to the ministry, Gabriola Island is home to approximately 4,000 full-time residents.

Strollers walk along the beach near Orlebar Point on Gabriola Island's northern tip in this 2008 handout photo.
BOOMER JERRITT/TOURISM VANCOUVER ISLAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Residents currently rely on BC Ferries' Route 19 as a link to Nanaimo, which has mostly hourly sailings from Gabriola to Nanaimo Harbour.

The 3.7-nautical-mile, 20-minute route transported 321,000 vehicles in 2013-14, though Zane said residents are often forced to wait several sailings to get on a ferry.

"It overloads quickly so it can be very frustrating," he said.

The feasibility study will examine potential locations for a fixed link, provide a cost estimate and also conduct a cost comparison between a bridge and existing ferry service.

The study is expected to be complete in spring 2015.

Kelowna. Three dogs attacked, one killed

One dog is dead and two others were brutally injured in an overnight attack at a Kelowna home.

Kelowna RCMP say they received a call Tuesday morning after the homeowners woke up and found their three Rottweilers suffering from extensive injuries outside.

"They all suffered fairly serious injuries after being attacked with some sort of large edged weapon," said Const. Kris Clark.

The youngest of the animals, an eight-month old, died after it suffered a large gash to its hind leg.

A one-year-old Rottweiler suffered significant lacerations to its nose and face, and had one of its ears cut off.

The eldest dog, a 10-year-old, suffered similar facial injuries and has fractures to its skull.

The B.C. SPCA is assisting police with the investigation, which may result in animal cruelty charges.

Clark said the attack may be related to an earlier incident.

A 48-year-old Kelowna man was arrested Saturday, Sept. 13, for allegedly assaulting and uttering threats against the owner of the dogs.

Clark said the suspect has been released pending charges, and that RCMP are now investigating whether the two incidents are connected.

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to contact Kelowna RCMP.

Vision, NPA both pitch school breakfast plan

Campaign promises. As Robertson pledges $400K for school board, LaPointe says he's been talking about the issue since July

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Vision Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson and school board chair Patti Bacchus pledge $400,000 for school breakfast programs if elected. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/METRO

In a city like Vancouver, no child should go to school hungry.

That's the message both Vision Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson and NPA mayoral candidate Kirk LaPointe championed Thursday, with both leaders promising solutions to the problem if their parties win a majority in the Nov. 15 election.

Robertson, alongside Vancouver school board chair Patti Bacchus, pledged to invest $400,000 to double the school board's breakfast program and serve hot, healthy meals to 1,300 kids. The money would come from the city's contingency fund.

"In a city as prosperous and compassionate as Vancouver, there is no reason why any kid should go to school hungry," Robertson said outside Strathcona Community Centre.

As it stands, the school board's $200,000 breakfast program is funded exclusively by charitable donations.

Following Vision's announcement, LaPointe noted he has been talking about this issue since he announced his candidacy in July.

Vision's pledge shows that they haven't done enough in the past six years, LaPointe said in an interview.

"They're looking for good ideas because they're out of their own," he said.

LaPointe, who was raised by a single mother and grew up in poverty in Toronto, has been courting private organizations to invest in food programs. About a dozen organizations have expressed interest so far, he said.

If an NPA government is elected in November, LaPointe would "do what it takes" to solve the problem.

"It's not a matter of matching or outdoing Vision, we would just get the job done," he said.

Twenty-two per cent of Vancouver children younger than six live in low-income families.

Canadian Museum for Human Rights set to open in Winnipeg

This weekend.
Brainchild of Izzy Asper comes to light after years of fundraising and controversy

SHANE GIBSON
Metro in Winnipeg

After 14 years of work, Canada's first national museum outside of Ottawa — the Canadian Museum for Human Rights — is set to open in Winnipeg this weekend.

First envisioned by the late Winnipeg-based media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper in 2000, the 260,000-square-foot museum will open its doors to the public for the first time Saturday following an opening ceremony Friday.

"People have been working so hard, they're so passionate and I think we realize what we have here — we're a little like a kid before Christmas," said museum spokeswoman Angela Cassie this week about finally opening the museum. "After all this work, having people coming through and experiencing the exhibits is an amazing feeling for all of us."

The $351-million museum, which sits at the historic confluence of the Red and Assiniboine rivers at The Forks in Winnipeg, has 47,000-square-feet of exhibit space and interactive galleries delving into everything from the Holocaust and war atrocities to the high and low points of Canada's own human rights record.

The museum has been a lightning rod for controversy during its development, with several cultural groups complaining human rights violations they've suffered are either absent from the exhibits, or glazed over.

"For a human rights museum, that is to be expected," Cassie said of the complaints and protests expected for the opening weekend. "We will work together with organizations that have concerns, and allow that to update and inform how we update and renew our exhibits and public programming."

The public will be able to take guided tours of four of the museum's galleries this weekend, and all exhibits — including the building's iconic glass Tower of Hope — are set to open Sept. 27.

The museum is criss-crossed by several ramps leading to various galleries.

Timeline

A look at the long, sometimes bumpy road to the opening of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights:

July, 2000: Winnipeg media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper pitches to the federal government the idea of a "tolerance" museum in Winnipeg.

April, 2003: The Asper family, federal government, province and city announce plans for a $200-million human rights museum. The feds' initial commitment is $30 million.

Oct. 7, 2003: Izzy Asper dies. His daughter Gail Asper becomes the driving force behind the museum project.

Jan., 2006: While donations pour in, The Asper Foundation puts up another $12 million for capital costs. Opening is pushed from 2008 to 2010.

Dec., 2008: The federal government essentially takes over. The price tag is now $265 million. The feds kick in $100 million, plus annual operating costs of $21 million.

July, 2009: Construction gets underway, but inflation and other factors drive up the projected cost to $310 million.

Nov., 2013: Exterior construction nears completion. An opening date of Sept. 19, 2014, is announced. The price tag has grown to $351 million.

Sept., 2014: Workers rush to finish the first four galleries in time for the grand opening. As of press deadline, it's unknown if they will finish on time.

Vancouver's Green Party wants balance of power

'Council dominated by Vision.' Green Party intends to tackle affordable housing

Majority rule has made for an incredibly predictable city council over the past six years, with Vision Vancouver councillors obeying the party line and voting as a bloc.

But the Green Party wants to change that.

The party, which got its first seat on council in the 2011 election, is striving to get three people elected to council so it can hold the balance of power and the swing vote, Coun. Adriane Carr said as her party announced its platform outside Science World on Thursday.

"We're seeing a council dominated by Vision, where decisions are made in caucus meetings behind closed doors," said Carr, the lone Green Party councillor.

If the other two Green council candidates, Cleta Brown and Pete Fry, get elected alongside Carr, she believes the party will be able to "influence decisions more powerfully."

Affordable housing is the most critical issue the Green Party intends to tackle, Carr said. It would lobby for neighbourhood councils and create a citywide plan to stop spot rezonings, which Carr believes drive up land prices due to speculation. It would also follow Whistler's footsteps to exact an employee housing tax on large new developments in order to build affordable housing.

The party would focus on going back to the basics of picking up trash and mowing lawns, park board candidate Stuart Mackinnon said.

1,000 surveyed. Kids likely to eat healthier if parents went to college, study says

Kids with parents with some college education will eat more of their broccoli and brussels sprouts, according to a University of British Columbia study.

The study surveyed almost 1,000 students across 26 Vancouver public schools from Grades 5 to 8 in 2012. It asked them to what they ate at school or while travelling to and from school.

Children with parents who completed some post-secondary education were 85 per cent more likely to eat vegetables during the school week than those with parents who completed high school or less. They were also 67 per cent less likely to consume sugary drinks.

Study co-author Jennifer Black, UBC food, nutrition and health professor in the Faculty of Land and Food Systems, said they can only speculate on the reasons for the disparities.

"We realized a piece that was really important … was this question of health equity and disparities," she explained. "Are there socioeconomic barriers that makes it hard for some students?"

But what really shocked Black was that 15 per cent of the surveyed students reported experiencing hunger at home.

It also found that regardless of socioeconomic status, the majority of children do not consume enough low-fat milk or whole grains at school — opting instead for packaged snacks or fast food.

Less than half reported eating fruit, vegetables, whole grains or low-fat milk. Seventeen per cent admitted to eating fast food, 20 per cent said they eat packaged snack foods and 31 per cent drank sugary drinks daily.

Driver error likely cause of bus crash, minister says

B.C.'s transportation minister says a highway crash that injured dozens of tour bus passengers last month was most likely caused by driver error.

The bus flipped into a ditch on the Coquihalla Highway south of Merritt, B.C., ejecting multiple passengers and leaving all 56 people injured. RCMP have ruled out speed as a cause, and provincial Transportation Minister Todd Stone says that mechanical failure has also been eliminated as a factor.

A final police report still has to be filed, but Stone said that driver fatigue potentially led to the crash.

Blind spots at fault for fatal mid-air crash: TSB

The Transportation Safety Board says the pilots of a glider and a Cessna likely didn't see each other because of blind spots and other visual problems, setting off a mid-air crash that left four people dead.

The crash and fire that followed happened on June 29, 2013, just above a provincial campground west of Pemberton, B.C., 150 kilometres north of Vancouver.

A TSB report says the glider was descending into the path of the Cessna, and because the glider pilot sits in a semi-reclined position behind the nose of the craft, visibility would have been limited. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The No's have it: Scots reject independence

Referendum. Scotland votes to remain part of the United Kingdom

A Unionist supporter talks with a Yes supporter in George Square, just a few hours before polling stations close in the Scottish independence referendum on Thursday in Glasgow, Scotland. JEFF J. MITCHELL/GETTY IMAGES

Scottish voters have rejected independence and decided that Scotland will remain part of the United Kingdom.

The result announced early Friday was the one favoured by Britain's political leaders, who had campaigned hard in recent weeks to convince Scottish voters to stay.

It dashed many Scots' hopes of breaking free and building their own nation.

Britain's leaders had argued successfully that Scots are better off staying part of the United Kingdom with England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

The decision to reject independence will ease the worries of some business leaders who had warned they would have to shift their headquarters away from Scotland to England if Scots voted to become independent.

After the polls closed late Thursday, a nationwide count began immediately at 32 regional centres across Scotland. Many Scots stayed up overnight in homes and bars, awaiting the result."Why not roll the dice for once?" Yes supporter Thomas Roberts said at one Edinburgh polling station. "I'm going to sit with a beer in my hand watching the results coming in."

At Highland Hall outside of Edinburgh, vote-counters at dozens of tables sorted through paper ballots, watched keenly by monitors from the Yes and No camps.

Eager voters lined up outside some polling stations even before they opened Thursday. More than 4.2 million people had registered to vote — 97 per cent of those eligible — including residents as young as 16.

For some, it was a day they had dreamed of for decades. For others, the time had finally come to make up their minds about the future — both for themselves and for the United Kingdom. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man kills daughter and six grandkids, commits suicide

A man killed six of his grandchildren, his adult daughter and himself in a shooting at a home in a small town in North Florida Thursday, a sheriff said.

Gilchrist County Sheriff Robert Schultz at a news conference identified the man as 51-year-old Don Spirit. He said the children ranged in age from three months to 10 years old. He would not say if the woman killed was the mother of any of the children.

Schultz said some people were left alive at the home. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

‘I will beat this,’ Rob Ford vows

Audio message from hospital bed.

Toronto’s mayor thanks well-wishers but also stumps for brother who replaced him in mayoral race

A frail-sounding Rob Ford implored Toronto voters from his hospital bed Thursday to elect his brother, Coun. Doug Ford, to succeed him, just hours before starting chemotherapy for a rare and aggressive cancer that forced him to drop out of the mayoral race.

In a recorded three-minute statement released by his brother’s campaign team, a gravelly-voiced Ford first thanked well-wishers, saying their support meant the world to him and his family.

“With the love and support of my family, my friends, and the people of Toronto — I will beat this,” he added. “I am determined to face this head-on and return strong for my family and for my city.”

Ford was diagnosed Wednesday with malignant liposarcoma — a type of cancer that arises from fat cells and can attack a variety of soft tissues. His doctor said he will be undergoing two rounds of chemotherapy before they determine the next step in his treatment.

His brother entered the mayoral race after Ford withdrew his bid for re-election last Friday.

One expert was skeptical that the ill mayor’s endorsement of his brother will boost support even among Ford’s followers.

“I just don’t think that we can expect that all those people are going to listen to that and move over, because their connection with Rob was an emotional connection,” said Henry Jacek, a political science professor at Hamilton’s McMaster University. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bones found near Red River are from an animal: Police

Winnipeg police say bones found by volunteers searching the Red River are not human.

Police said on Twitter that a forensic analysis by pathologists has confirmed the bones are from an animal.

Isis store may change name

Zero connection.
Calgary shop owners say they are enduring endless questions about whether their store, Isis, is connected to ISIS

Three years ago, Amyn Jagshi and his business partners settled on the name Isis for their jewelry shop in Calgary's Northland Village Mall in hopes of evoking an exotic vibe. Now, he claims he's being asked four to five times a day about potential connections to Islamic radicals.

"We have people come in and act like they've just solved a big mystery, like we are the ones behind these guys," Jagshi said, referring to the group known both as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS).

Jagshi suspects some of the association may be tied to media reports of at least four former Calgary residents who headed overseas to fight with the group in recent years.

"People don't know what they're talking about," he said. "There might be somebody doing that (funding the extremist group), but they wouldn't put the name ISIS on their front door."

Isis is also the name of an Egyptian goddess, but lately the term has been prevalent in news headlines as the radical group has claimed to have beheaded two American journalists and a British aid worker. Meanwhile U.S. President Barack Obama has gone public with a plan to train Syrian rebels to fight ISIS members.

Jagshi said he's considering changing the name after the Christmas season. In the meantime, he may put up a sign clarifying that the profits he's making from necklaces and earrings are not being funnelled to the extremist group.

GREAT SCOTS! WHAT A WEEK IT'S BEEN

It's time for the Metro List, your surefire guide to the hottest stories of the week.

THE LIST

Paul Sullivan
vancouver@metronews.ca

1 Scotland the Brave. By the time you read this, lassies and laddies, you'll know if Scotland has chosen to go it alone. It will require a wee dram of courage because even the Bank of Scotland says it will move to London if the Yes side wins.

2 Rob Ford vs. Liposarcoma. His Worship the Mayor of Toronto goes mano a mano with a rare and aggressive form of cancer featuring a tumour that's bigger than a baseball. I don't know about you, but I'm not going to bet against Rob Ford, whatever he's up against.

3 Time to Lose the Baggage. After this week, more and more Canadians will be travelling light, as first WestJet and then Air Canada add a $25 baggage handling charge for checked bags in economy class. How long before they start charging you for that 50-pound suitcase you're trying to stuff in the overhead?

4 Fly Me to the Moon. Well, not quite, but NASA has commissioned Boeing and SpaceX to be the first private companies to transport humans in space. The first destination will be ISS, the International Space Station, sometime in 2017. The good news: NASA will no longer have to pay the Russians $71 million per flight. But you have to wonder how much Boeing will charge for checked baggage.

5 Worm in the Apple? Apple CEO Tim Cook puts his cool clothes on and unveils a fall crop of devices, including an iWatch that's even better than Superman's wrist communicator. The problem is that on every front, Android was there first. Stay tuned for more smug commercials that take a bite out of Apple.

6 Gridiron Violence, Si! Domestic Violence, No! The NFL is learning a hard lesson this week. When you encourage young men to beat the crap out of each other for millions of dollars, you shouldn't be surprised when some of them take their work home. Somehow, it has come as a collective shock to the system that it's not OK to knock your wife out or beat your little boy until he's bloody. Are you ready for some football, or is it enough, already?

7 War on Terror 2.0. Meanwhile, there's a war going on. I think. US president Barack Obama has kinda declared war on ISIS, the latest nasty terrorist nightmare. But it's hardly shock and awe. More like this and that. The U.S. will train Arab armies to fight on the ground, while sending in airstrikes. The object seems to be to make an omelette without breaking any American eggs. Good luck with that.

RCMP investigate report that thousands of bees may have been poisoned

RCMP in Brandon, Man., are investigating a report that thousands of honey bees have been poisoned in the region recently.

Mounties say in a news release that two locations northwest of Brandon in the rural municipality of Elton are involved. They allege that poisonings are believed to have happened between Aug. 14 and Sept. 3. Mounties say the bee producers have suffered a substantial financial loss.

Dwindling bee populations have been an increasing concern in the agricultural community, though generally not because of any criminal action. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tough times

In recent years, bee populations worldwide have been ravaged by pesticides, parasites and Colony Collapse Disorder, a mysterious phenomenon in which worker bees suddenly disappear.

- California. A record drought has reduced honey supplies, raising prices and making it harder for beekeepers to earn a living.
- Ontario. A proposed class-action lawsuit has been launched against two chemical companies that make pesticides widely blamed for massive bee deaths.

Synopsis

Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books, The Maze Runner sees Thomas, played by Teen Wolf's Dylan O'Brien, plopped into a community of young men surrounded by a labyrinth. The rebellious Thomas wants to see if there is a way to navigate through the ever-changing maze that stands between the boys and whatever is happening in the outside world. When a girl, played by Kaya Scodelario, arrives with a note clutched in her hand, ("She is the last one,") it seems like the time has come to take on the maze and hopefully avoid being eaten by its evil guardians, the Grievers.

- Richard: ●●●○○
- Mark: ●●○○○

The Maze Runner.
Characters spend more time talking about the forbidden labyrinth than actually seeking their way around it

Richard: Mark, the story in The Maze Runner is based on a dare. When Thomas is dropped into a mysterious walled world where a society of boys have grown up in the shadow of a giant labyrinth, he is told, "Don't go in the maze."

Of course he does, because that's like telling a teen, "Don't go through that door," in a horror flick. Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books — so yes, you can look forward to The Maze Runner 2: Electric Boogaloo coming soon to a theatre near you — and the immediacy of the story serves it well ... to a point.

It's a good set-up that turns into a becomes a standard 3D sci-fi chase flick.

What did you think?

Mark: Richard, it was dull, dull, dull, interrupted by the occasional exciting scene but it played like a dumbed-down version of Lost for paranoid teens.

Yes, the set-up is good, but so little time is actually spent in the maze, and there's too much time talking about it.

The dialogue is mostly exposition, the acting is functional at best, and although it's cut from the same cloth as The Hunger Games, it doesn't have any of its bite.

It's no spoiler alert to reveal that some will survive, and the big reveal is laughable in the way it shills for the inevitable sequel.

RC: I liked it way more than you. I liked that the characters are cyphers with no knowledge of their pasts, so they have to create personas based on their abilities in the camp.

That way, unlike most original stores, we don't have to spend much time getting to know the characters, where they came from, or what their inner torment is.

They don't know and neither do we.

Instead they concentrate on the present — their present — and survival. Imagine if the reality show Survivor was set in a world surrounded by an impenetrable maze and the only way to get voted off the island was to be eaten by a giant, mechanical Griever beast.

MB: Actually, that's a pretty good description of Survivor. Mazes intrigue me, and so do mad scientists. You'd think the combination would work here, but it just didn't for me. I preferred Cube and even the much-maligned The Village as riffs on the same topic.

Of course, you could see the movie as a metaphor for a cruel deity's continuous test of the human race, but... naaaaah. And I really wanted a more shocking ending.

RC: I think there will be more thrills should the next part of the series ever get made.

The first movie is just the foreplay.

MB: Foreplay perhaps, but with cold fingers and bad breath.

Pondering the pursuit of happiness

Simon Pegg. Actor's latest role has him reflecting on cynicism, psychiatry and the malaise of modern Western civilization

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Simon Pegg goes all out in Hector and the Search for Happiness as the titular psychiatrist stymied by modern life who embarks on a globe-trotting trip to get in touch with his inner child.

To hear Pegg tell it, how you respond to the film says a lot about you.

I totally fell for this film, but then I'm a total sap.
Well, one person's sap is another person's ... emotionally open person. There's nothing wrong with giving yourself over to something. It's easy to be cynical and dismiss something that's arguably sentimental as being frivolous, but I don't think that's true. I think the message of this film is a little bit more sophisticated than just schmaltz. It's about getting in touch with a child-like wonder and accessing your own happiness through that.

I found a lot of the British critics were like, "Oh no, this is terribly ... no, thank you."

That's the British critic accent?
It is! "Oh no, we don't like this. Too, too, too rough, too emotional." I get why, but if you're fundamentally unhappy, this film will shine quite a bright light on that, whereas if you have a capacity to be happy you'll come out of it going, "Yeah, man!"

At one point Hector gets very down on his profession of psychiatry because many of his patients treat it as a luxury item, but that's not the whole of that field.
I totally agree that in psychiatry you can help people to address issues that they have that might damage their lives, but at the same time when you don't have to worry about survival, when you don't have to worry about finding your next meal or living through the night, you have time to start thinking about stuff like that, and that's when you start questioning your happiness. There is a certain numbness to modern living for us in affluent society where we have so much choice and we're so looked after, pandered to, offered so much stuff that's supposed to make us happy that we completely lose sight of what it means. Whereas if you spent yesterday avoiding being shot and you know that today you're not going to get shot, your happiness would be so much more real and identifiable and easier to understand. That's not advocating not getting shot as being a way of being happy, mind you.

I don't know, I could recommend not getting shot as a way to be happy.
I could certainly recommend that just purely as a survival method.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Is Avril's year-old marriage coming to a Chad end?

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Say it ain't so! After recently celebrating a year of wedded bliss — and showing off a gaudy 17-carat diamond ring to mark the occasion, Avril Lavigne and Nickelback frontman Chad Kroeger are reportedly packing it in, according to Us Weekly. "It's over. He has been going around L.A. telling people that they are divorcing," a source says.

I'm not really one to judge, but I can't believe it took her this long to realize he was in Nickelback. I guess sparkly diamonds can only distract a person from the awful truth for so long.

Shocker! Family of George's bride-to-be to pick up tab for rehearsal dinner

As George Clooney's upcoming Venice wedding to Amal Alamuddin approaches, new details about the big day are leaking out. Italian outlet Il Gazzettino reports that the nuptials will take place on Sept. 27, and Clooney's favourite newspaper of all time, the Daily Mail, reports that the couple will host an intimate rehearsal dinner the night before at the Hotel Cipriani. Us Weekly, for its part, claims that Alamuddin's family will actually be footing the bill. "Crazy enough," a source says, "her family is paying for most of it."

George Clooney

Kendall Jenner ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Kendall gets the butt-out-of-our-biz treatment from other NYFW models

Apparently there's even hazing in the fashion world, as Kendall Jenner reportedly learned during her New York Fashion Week debut earlier this month. "The other models worked so hard to get a spot on the runway and didn't think it was fair that she was there. They thought she was getting special treatment and just weren't OK with it," a source tells In Touch, adding that some of the other models "even put out their cigarettes in Kendall's drink. Models can be cruel, especially with someone new and entitled."

Ingredients

Lasagna
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter
- 1 lb (454 g) skinless and boneless chicken thighs
- 2 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
- Salt and pepper
- 1 lb (454 g) mushrooms, sliced
- 3 oz (85 g) thinly sliced pancetta, chopped
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) white wine
- 1 can (28 oz/796 ml) diced tomatoes
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped parsley
- 9 lasagna noodles, cooked al dente
- 2 cups (500 ml) grated mozzarella cheese

Parmesan Béchamel Sauce
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) butter
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) milk
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) ground nutmeg

Lasagna

1. In large non-stick skillet, brown onion in butter. Add chicken and garlic and cook over high heat until chicken is golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside in a bowl.

2. In same skillet, brown mushrooms and pancetta. Add butter, if needed. Season with salt and pepper. Deglaze with the wine. Add the chicken mixture and tomatoes. Bring to a boil.

3. Cover and simmer for about 20 minutes or until chicken is cooked. Shred chicken with a fork, return to sauce and add the parsley. Adjust seasoning.

4. Parmesan Béchamel Sauce: In a saucepan, melt the butter. Add the flour and stir well. Add the milk and bring to a boil, stirring with a whisk. Simmer for 1 minute. Stir in the Parmesan and nutmeg. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

Assembly

1. With rack in middle position, preheat oven to 350 F.

2. At bottom of 13 x 9-inch (33 x 23 cm) baking dish, spread 1 cup (250 ml) of chicken sauce and cover with layer of noodles. Spread half of remaining chicken sauce and cover with a layer of noodles. Cover with béchamel sauce and then the remaining noodles. Add remaining chicken sauce and sprinkle with mozzarella.

3. Bake 30 minutes. Finish cooking under broiler for 5 minutes. Let rest 10 minutes before serving. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION LAUNCHING THIS SEPTEMBER!

Liquid Assets

Go beyond the obvious

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Wine and food pairing is an exercise in avoiding the obvious. Too often foodies focus on the main feature of a dish and ignore secondary components when picking a liquid to match.

Sauces, spices and even vegetables will influence your dinner's outcome, masking what you might think is the upfront flavour generator.

This week's recipe is a classic example. The chicken might seem the decision maker, or maybe it's the pasta noodles. It's really the can of tomatoes.

Though the humble tomato may look harmless, it's an acid bomb that doesn't play well with most wines. At the heart of Ricardo's rustic lasagna, it demands you choose a wine with an equally acidic personality.

Many Italian grapes fit the bill. A white pinot grigio or red sangiovese or barbera has more than enough acidity.

I'm partial to a pinot noir from France or California. Chateau St. Jean's 2012 Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir ($18.99 - $19.95) is a plump and juicy Californian with plenty of tomato-friendly acid and bright red fruit.

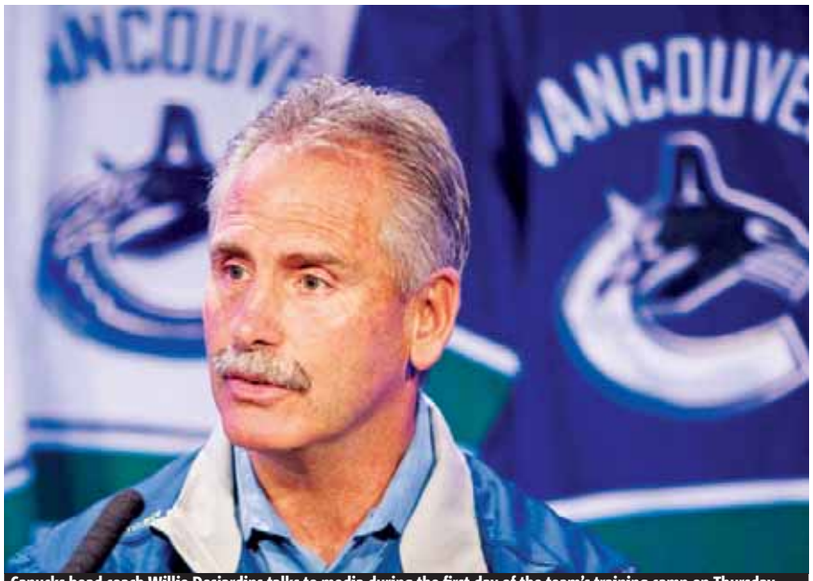
Enthusiasm reigns as Canucks camp opens

NHL. Coach Desjardins' approach has already left favourable impression on players

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca



Canucks head coach Willie Desjardins talks to media during the first day of the team's training camp on Thursday.
BEN NELMS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kevin Bieksa was cracking jokes. Alex Burrows was smiling. Chris Higgins agreed with the idea this is like a clean slate.

Vancouver Canucks training camp has officially opened. Players reported for physicals and testing on Thursday at Rogers Arena, then met with the media to talk mostly about change to the roster, change to management and change to the coaching staff.

There was a sense of enthusiasm with those who took to the podium.

That ceased to exist after a short while last season.

The John Tortorella era ended after one year, with disastrous results.

The dominoes began to fall when Mike Gillis lost his job as general manager before the season was even over.

On-ice sessions get underway in Whistler on Friday.

A rookie NHL bench boss, Willie Desjardins comes to Vancouver with the reputation as being a player's coach.

"He's a guy that understands each individual," said Derek Dorsett, who the Canucks acquired at the draft from the New York Rangers and used to play for Desjardins with the Western Hockey League's Medicine Hat Tigers.

"He'll let you know where you stand. If things aren't going good, he'll talk to you in a good manner and he respects each player so that's why I think guys play hard for him."

Respecting his players, getting their input, travelling as far as Sweden and up to Smithers to visit and meet his players seems to have left a favourable impression.

"Just his attitude toward the players and his relationship with the players is going to be probably a little more positive spin on it," said Higgins.

But will this sense of enthusiasm revitalize optimism from the fan base, which had been driven to apathy?

"It's another new season with another new coaching staff. Something we're not proud of," said Bieksa.

"It's a fresh start, a chance to redeem ourselves, so to speak."

NFL

Falcons lay talons into Buccaneers

Matt Ryan, Julio Jones and high-stepping Devin Hester led the Atlanta Falcons to one of the biggest wins in franchise history.

Ryan threw for 286 yards and three touchdowns, Jones hauled in nine passes for 161 yards and a couple of scores, and Hester set an NFL record with his 20th return for a TD as the Falcons routed the hapless Tampa Bay Buccaneers 56-14 on Thursday night.

The Falcons (2-1) led 35-0 before the Buccaneers (0-3) picked up a first down. Ryan and the other offensive starters left the game after Steven Jackson's three-yard touchdown run made it 49-0 before the midway point of the third quarter.

Knee injuries force Li Na to retire

Li Na, a two-time Grand Slam champion from China who took tennis in Asia to a new level, has retired due to recurring knee injuries.

Li posted the news on her microblog Friday, ending a week of intensifying speculation that she would announce her retirement ahead of the new WTA event at Wuhan, her hometown.

School is in session for Ward's Giants

From Troy Ward has come an analogy to describe the Vancouver Giants and the teaching of a new system and style that has come with a new head coach.

"We're about 200 yards from the ferry, to get on the ferry to go to (Victoria)," said Ward, the Giants' bench boss, after Wednesday's practice in Tsawwassen.

"And there's a turtle going from one side to the other. It's crossing the road before you get to the ferry. We're that turtle. We're at a turtle's pace to cross the road in our learning."

Ward was quick to commend his young group of players for their attentiveness.

The Giants open the 2014-15 Western Hockey League season Saturday against the Victoria Royals at the Pacific Coliseum.

Last season saw the Giants return to the playoffs after a one-year absence.

Soon after getting swept out of the first round, Vancouver cut ties with longtime coach Don Hay.

After a lengthy search, the Giants named Ward, previously with the former Abbotsford Heat, as their new head coach.

As for his style on the ice, Ward preaches puck possession.

"It's like World Cup soccer. World Cup soccer is you don't ever want to give up the ball," said Ward. "That's the Vancouver Giants. We don't ever want to give up the puck."

These games mean something now. They're all worth two points.

"The turtle has not crossed the road yet," said Ward. "We've got a ways to go."

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
A relationship may be going through a rough patch but the planets indicate there's nothing to worry about. You could still make things easier by not giving them the impression you don't care, when you do.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
It doesn't matter what threats you make today, a work colleague will move at their own speed — and that's dead slow! Grit your teeth and bear it.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Your priority now must be to get out into the world and do what Geminis do best to have fun. Career and money worries can be left until another day.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
There will be good and bad days but there will be a lot more of the former if you change the way you assess what is "good" and "bad". You can be far too hard on yourself.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
However difficult your current situation, you'll handle it with ease. You need to realize that whatever you have to face is what you're meant to face.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
What happened in the past is irrelevant to your present situation. Look back only to learn a lesson or two then look and move forward.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Don't beat yourself up about something that went wrong. If you indulge your emotions, you may lose sight of good things you have to be thankful for.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Something that made perfect sense a while ago now seems to make no sense at all. A day or two from now you will have forgotten why you thought it was so important.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may have strong views on controversial topics but the planets warn this is not the right time to make an issue of them. Wait until the Sun moves in your favour on the 23rd.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You may be having a great deal of fun but have you considered the consequences which could arise from some of your more impulsive actions?

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The answers you seek are easily found, but only if you ask the right questions in the right way. You're an Aquarius, so think, speak and act big.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
The best way to deal with a negative situation is to ignore it. If you do, it'll quickly shrink in importance. The more you focus on what's going wrong, the longer it will stick around.

TRAVEL BLOG

The highlights of our first few days in New Zealand brought on immense anticipation for the remainder of our trip, knowing how very different the North Island was from what we just saw in the South. All we knew for certain was that we were doing it right, seeing it all how it was meant to be seen, from the comfort of our own vehicle and at our own pace.
